A: Can I speak to Natali, please?

B: I'm sorry, Natalie's in a meeting at the moment. Would you like to leave a message?

A: Yes, could you ask her to call me back, please?

B: Of course. Does she have your number?

A: She has my office number, but let me also give you my cell phone, it's 7789-456-1230.

B: Let me repeat that. That's 789-456-1230, right?

A: That's right

B: Okay, Mr. A. I'll give her your message.

A: Thanks a lot. Bye.

Text 2 : การเขียน Email ที่เป็นทางการ unit 7

From: Thomas Kale
To: Emily Wright
Subject: I'm home
Attachments: 1 attachment, 1.5MB

Hi Em,

Well, I'm back at work. Really tired – my flight was delayed about five hours, and I've got pretty bad jet lag. It's so hard to stay awake today!

Barcelona was great. Had tons of meetings, but they were productive, and I liked the people. I had some time for sightseeing, but not enough. I'd love to go back on holiday. Weather wasn't so good – it rained almost every day.

The attached is a picture of me and someone from the Barcelona office in front of the Sagrada Familia church (in the sunshine, of course!). You can find all kinds of stuff there. I got a few T-shirts and some really cool shoes. Much cheaper than here! ☺

BTW, how was your birthday party? Sorry I couldn't be there. ☹ Next time!

Thomas

a an informal greeting
b incomplete sentences (often missing a subject)
c a dash – to show an explanation
d parentheses ( ) to show extra information
e an exclamation point ! to show surprising information or strong feelings
f an emoticon (small picture used to convey feelings)
g an abbreviation
h no closing

A: Hi, B, could you do me a favor?

B: Sure, A. What is it?

A: Could you check my email to the CP Manager? I'm sending him the purchase order.

B: Sure, no problem. First thing, you need to write something in the Subject line.

A: Oh, right! I totally forgot

B: Just say, purchase order.

A: OK.

B: Do you know his name? then you should use his name in the greeting. Don't forget to put comma after his name.

A: Yes. What about the rest of the paragraph? Does it sound alright?

B: Yeah, the rest is fine. Oh! I think your closing is too informal.

A: Yeah, I guess it is. So ... maybe 'sincerely'?

B: 'Sincerely' sound right.

A: Thank you very much. I know it's just a short email. I just want to do it right.

B: You're welcome. Writing business emails is important. I happy to help Interviewer1: who's next?

Interviewer2: Ron Park. He graduated from Imperial College London. That's good university.

Interviewer1: What is his degree in?

Interviewer2: Business administration.

Interviewer1: Well. And does he have enough experience?

Interviewer2: Well, I'm not sure. He hasn't had a full-time job yet. But he helped with sales and market research. That's useful. So, do we want to interview him?

Interviewer1: I'm not sure. Why don't we put this CV in the "maybe" group? We can come back to it later. And let's have the next CV.

Interviewer2: All right, here we go. Pat Morgan.

Interviewer1: OK, does she have a business degree?

Interviewer2: Yes! And she graduated with honors. Since the Pat has been working at a software company in tech support for two years.

Interviewer1: Oh, nice. Well finally! Someone who's actually qualified for the position.

Part III Reading 10 ข้อ

ข้อสอบออกคล้ายๆตัวอย่างด้านล่างนี้

Text 1 :

To: Katherine Molas

From: Arles Ahmed, BSF Software, Inc.

Subject: Tuesday's meeting

Dear Katherine,

Thank you for taking the time to meet together with BSF staff on Tuesday. Everyone on our team felt that it was a productive meeting to discuss issues related to an upcoming project. We have a better understanding of your project's needs now, and we started looking at ways to adapt our software to meet your requirements.

While the basic function of the software is well suited to the project overall, as discussed, we will explore ways to adapt it to the needs of the different departments at Urbanized Power Systems that will be using it. This will result in some additional cost – as we indicated – and we'll provide details about that at our next meeting, once our engineers have assessed the issues and made their recommendations regarding changes that will need to be made.

I've asked Peter Parker to prepare a document for you that indicates when the Training and Consulting department could start providing services to you. He'll send this information to you directly as he is the head of the Training and Consulting department and an expert in this field.

As agreed, let's set up a meeting for the week of December 25 by which time our engineers will be able to outline their approaches to your departmental needs. Takana Sai, my secretary, will be the one who will provide you with more information on the 25 December meeting.

In the meantime, please feel free to contact me if you have any questions.

Best Regards,

Arles
